A MESSAGE FROM MR FARRAR

On Monday, we launched our Peace Week with our annual Odd Socks Day, celebrating individuality and reminding everyone that it is our differences that make us special. It was wonderful to see pupils embracing the message that everyone is unique and valued.

Throughout the week, classes took part in a range of age-appropriate activities using resources from the Anti-Bullying Alliance, with a particular focus on our school value for this half term: kindness. Pupils explored what it means to treat others with respect, celebrate diversity and create a positive and inclusive school community.

As we brought Peace Week to a close on Friday, I was incredibly proud of the kindness, respect and positive attitudes shown by our pupils throughout the week.

During our celebration assembly, we recognised the many acts of kindness and consideration shown by pupils. It was wonderful to hear so many examples of children looking out for one another, showing respect and helping to create a positive environment where everyone feels valued and included.
Thank you to our children, staff and families for supporting this important week and helping to make our school a caring and welcoming place for everyone.
Kind regards,
Mr Farrar
